The creation of national debts is not a modern improvement, but the ability of a of March, 1865. The sale of the second se. great nation to provide for a great debt, and to make it the most convenient and best form ries of Three Hundred Millions, payable of personal property, is a modern wonder. three years from the 15th day of June, 1865, was begun on the 1st of April, In the short space of thirty days, over One Hundred Millions of this series have been sold—leaving this day less than Two Hundred Millions to been imposed upon the indicate with Louis XIV. was terminated, the debt had reached fifty millions of this series have been sold—leaving the natured at the great burden which had been imposed upon the indicate the later with the later wit try, but when the war of the Austrian saccession had swelled this amount to eighty millions, Macaulay says that historians and orators pronounced the case to be desperate.

But when war again broke out, and the national debt was rapidly carried up to use. hundred and forty millions, men of theo y and business both pronounced that the far I day had certainly arrived. David Hume said that, although, by taxing its energies to the utmost, the country might possibly live through it, the experiment must never be repeated, even a small increase might be fatal. Granville said the nation must sink under it unless some portion of the load was borne by the American Colonies, and the attempt to impose this load produced the war of the revolution, and, instead of DIMINISTRIKE, added another hundred millions to the burden. Again, says Macaulay, was England duce expenditures as rapidly as possible to a duce expenditures as rapidly as possible to a given over; but again she was more presperence footing, thus withdrawing from market ous than ever before. During the fiercest and most exhausting of all possible wars, we have demonstrated our national strength—and all the world over, national strength is but another name for national credit. "As good as United Stocks" will soon be synonymous the world over with "as good as British Consols." For our part, we think a U.S. Treasury note; bearing seven and three-tenths annual interest, is just as much better than British Consols as the rate of interest is higher. Some sols as the rate of interest is higher.
